

Can you help us learn more about the experiences of LGBTQ+ people living with dementia?

I would like to speak to people who support an LGBTQ+ person living with dementia about their experiences with using dementia services and organisations.

Why are we doing this research?

I am currently doing research at University College London and would like to learn more about the experiences of using dementia services and organisations for LGBTQ+ people living with dementia and whether services are meeting people's needs.

I also want to learn about any other support that might be helpful, and any barriers to receiving the right help.

What will happen if I take part?

- You will have the opportunity to discuss the study and ask questions.
- You will take part in an online interview that will last around 45 minutes where I will talk to you about the experiences of using dementia services for the person you care for.
- You will receive a £20 Love2Shop voucher for your help.

Who should I contact to discuss the study?

If you are interested in taking part or would like some more information on the study, please contact myself, Simran Kainth, at:
